

TYTHEdesign provides social impact strategies to bolster the capacity of government, nonprofits, and foundations to amplify resilient cities and healthy communities.

TYTHEdesign was founded to both address social sector challenges and cultivate community and institutional resiliency. We utilize human-centered design, collaborative and civic-based engagement, and identify insights gleaned from community-based research to help our social sector clients innovate, pilot, and scale effective and equitable strategies, programs and services that further create social value.

Our mission is to democratize decision-making by bringing traditionally marginalized voices into the processes that impact their everyday lives. We have led engagements and projects that intersect community development, civic engagement, library innovation, education, workforce development, affordable housing, reentry planning, arts and culture and more.

TYTHEdesign is a certified Women-owned Business Enterprise (WBE) based in New York City.

How We Work

We facilitate creative and productive conversations that lead to action.

We bring a collaborative framework to each project, infusing the design thinking process into our daily practice. We focus on understanding your stakeholders' unique challenges, tailoring outcomes to your community's needs, and making informed design decisions.

Our methods shift the paradigm of traditional forums.

We don't assume that a prescriptive process will provide the solutions for your team- rather, we work with you to build a foundation of collective expertise and facilitate pertinent, feasible opportunities.

People are at the heart of our work.

Our multidisciplinary team brings skills and expertise from wide-ranging backgrounds and industries across sectors to meet your dynamic needs. Throughout each phase of the process, our team designs with, not for, our partnering clients and their direct stakeholders.
